

Rick Miller, CFP®

Rick Miller earned his Ph.D. in Economics at the University of Chicago where his studies included family economics and lifetime planning. He brings a particularly analytical and rigorous approach to the practice of both financial planning and investment advice.

As a business consultant, Mr. Miller specializes in financial services. His work regularly puts him in contact with regulators, industry experts, and senior executives. While at Scudder Investments, he learned the inner workings of mutual funds first-hand and went on to develop a financial advice offering for the company. In the process, he scouted the market for the latest financial advice software tools.

With Sensible Financial Planning, Mr. Miller ties together the threads of his professional career:

- An analytically rigorous approach to the practice of financial planning
- High quality advice tailored to his clients' circumstances at a reasonable price
- Access to high quality, low cost financial products and services
- A commitment to help clients choose among those products and services for your benefit
